Objective of the Committee	:	The classification principle ensures that each club's membership represents a cross-section of its community's business and professional population. Just as Rotarians represent their vocation in Rotary, so too do they represent Rotary in their vocations. The committee promotes vocational awareness and tours by helping clubs organize talks and visits to establishments of Rotarians so that others can learn about different vocations.
What Clubs should do	:	Arrange Classification talks to promote vocational awareness Organize tours of members' workplaces to recognize the value of each member's vocation. If the size of the workplace and the size of the club permit, schedule an occasional meeting in a member's place of employment. Invite young people to participate as well.
